

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
January 23, 2019

Public Screening of Neither Wolf Nor Dog continues celebration of Native Voices Exhibit at Laramie County Library

On January 30 at 5:30 p.m. in the Cottonwood Room, the Laramie County Library will continue celebrating the Native Voices Exhibit with a public screening of the film Neither Wolf Nor Dog. A mediated discussion will follow the film and will be led by Dr. Caskey Russell, a professor in the American Indian Studies Program at the University of Wyoming and an enrolled member of the Tlingit Tribe.

Neither Wolf Nor Dog is adapted from the acclaimed novel by Kent Nurburn, and follows a Lakota elder and his protective friend as they recruit a white author to help write a book about their people and the reality of their lives. The three men travel through the heart of Lakota country, and make important discoveries about themselves and each other while trying to create a book that can be left for future generations. This event gives the attendees the opportunity to see one of the limited screenings of Neither Wolf Nor Dog, and to analyze, interpret, and question all of the profound themes that are explored throughout the film.

This public screening is one of several events that are celebrating the exhibit, Native Voices, which is on display at Laramie County Library until February 13th. The U.S. National Library of Medicine (NLM) developed and produced Native Voices: Native Peoples' Concepts of Health and Illness. The American Library Association (ALA) Public Programs Office, in partnership with NLM, tours the exhibition to America's libraries.

Taco Johns will provide a light dinner before the film, so come early to grab some food, find a seat and enjoy a special screening of an exceptionally powerful film.

Contact

Kasey Storey at 307-773-7225 or kastorey@lclsonline.org for media information or to arrange interviews. For general library information, please call 307-634-3561 or visit lclsonline.org.